TRAPPED, GIRL DIED IN AUTO IN POND

Miss Catherine Murnane of Cambridge who was drowned in Hollow Pond, Stoneham, when auto in which she was sitting plunged into water. The tragedy occurred on her twenty-sixth birthday.

BODY OF GIRL IS FOUND IN COUPE

An unknown guest rode in the coupe with Catherine Murnane of No. 215 Mt. Auburn street, Cambridge, when she went for an auto ride as a happy ending to her twenty-sixth birthday.
Early today the coupe was dragged from the waters of Hollow Pond in Stoneham by Metropolitan Park police, and the girl's body was taken from inside the car.
The unknown passenger was dead.
The tragic end of Miss Murnane's birthday came as the result of an unusual accident.
John J. Fitzgerald of No. 20 Frank street, North Cambridge, Miss Murnane's suitor and driver of the car, accidentally left the machine's gears meshed in reverse when he stopped the car along the edge of the pond.
Deciding to return home, Fitzgerald cranked the car, the engine still in reverse. The engine "caught" on the first turn of the

Lady Carnarvon Defies Her Rival

G. C. P. LEADERS ASK COOLIDGE NOT TO NAME WARREN AGAIN

MRS. DENNISTON IS DEFIED BY COUNTLESS CARNARVON IN SUIT

London, March 11.—Lady Carnarvon defied the glare of scandal to protect herself and her husband against possible future demands by Mrs. Dorothy Denniston, declared Norman Bennett, her counsel, at today's trial of the famous Denniston case.
Outlining the case for the defense, Attorney Bennett said the former Countess Carnarvon would have settled the controversy out of court but, despite "the unbreakable English" which the proceedings caused her and Colonel Denniston, they had determined to take their present and their future in their hands and fight in order that they should have no further demands made upon them.
Attorney Bennett made his statement as Mrs. Denniston, who is suing her ex-husband for $5,000 in loans, retorted her case. Mrs. Denniston's former husband is now married to Lady Carnarvon, widow of the discoverer of King Tut's tomb.

Dealing with the "love sacrifices," Mrs. Denniston said she made for

CONGDON DEFEATS SALISBURY KLAN

Salisbury, March 11.—In the heat of a flaming Ku Klux Klan and in the midst of the Salisburies, Congdon defeated the Salisburies in a suit for damages.
The former chief pleaded no to a charge of conspiracy to evade the liquor laws when the Salisburies sued him for damages for the seizure of his property.
The case was heard in the Federal Court at Boston, where he was held by Judge Lowell that he was liable for four months.
A few days later, however, Attorney General Stone in Washington, ordered all action in the run scandal suspended indefinitely.

TWELVE RESCUED AT FIRE IN PROVIDENCE

Providence, March 11.—Twelve persons, including five children, escaped death by a matter of seconds early today when fire started in the basement of the two-and-a-half story house in which they were sleeping at No. 86 Broad street.
Volunteer rescuers, later reinforced by members of the Providence fire department, by heroic efforts, managed to carry and drag the last of the victims through the

RICHARD BENNETT SUED FOR DIVORCE

Adrienne Morrison, his actress wife, charges infidelity. Bennett and his wife parted amicably in 1923. Now she charges the actor misconducted himself on several occasions during the separation. She also asks custody of their three children. Bennett will not contest the suit, his wife's counsel says.

New York, March 11.—Richard Bennett, the actor, and his actress wife, Adrienne Morrison, thought they could be happy by living in separate establishments. So in the fall of 1923 they entered upon an amiable separation, but at that time both denied any intention of divorce proceedings.
The plan, it was revealed today when Mrs. Bennett's attorneys filed suit for divorce in the county clerk's office, has not worked out according to their hopes.
Mrs. Bennett charges her husband with misconduct with several persons at various times and places since their separation. The papers in the divorce suit were filed on Bennett in February. George Gordon Battle, Mrs. Bennett's attorney, declares Bennett made no answer to the complaint. As the legal time limit has now expired, this is taken as an indication that he will not oppose his wife's suit.

PRESIDENT IN LONG CONFERENCES TODAY WITH SENATE CHIEFS

Washington, March 11.—President Coolidge was advised today by Republican leaders in the Senate not to re-nominate of Charles B. Warren of Michigan to be Attorney-General, because it could not be confirmed.
The leaders said the President had given them no indication as to what his course would be, but some of them were of the opinion he would make another selection.
It was learned that President Coolidge had telephoned for Mr. Warren to come here for a conference. Judge Arthur J. Hughes of

ARREST 8 STUDENTS AFTER R. I. BATTLE

Newport, R. I., March 11.—After vanquishing the Woonsocket High School basketball team and winning the state championship, the Newport High School team was forced to battle its way back to this city from Woonsocket.
At the victorious team left the Woonsocket school building, together with about 100 classmates and supporters, they were set upon by a mob of Woonsocket sympathizers. Fists swung wildly and stones and other missiles flew until the Newporters bled their two automobiles and a truck. Even then they were pursued by the Woonsocket antagonists. One party overtook them on the Mendon road and the battle was resumed.
Several young men on both sides of the controversy received cuts and bruises and the clashing of scores was nearly torn from their backs.
Eight Woonsocket young men, none of whom is a high school student, were arrested charged with reviling.
One version of the trouble was that during a street parade of the visiting team and its friends that preceded the game five Woonsocket young men were beaten. This story spread rapidly during the game and at its close fighting was running high. When the visiting team and its supporters left the school building, one party overtook them on the Mendon road and the battle was resumed.

EXECUTORS MAKE IT TO COURTS

Demand Objections of Claimants Be Stricken From Probate Records

The executors of the $4,000,000 estate of Lotta M. Crabtree filed petitions today asking that the objections of some forty-nine claimants to portions of the fortune be stricken from the records.

All the 49 claim to be relatives of the actress and all seek to break the will, which left most of her money to charity.

The law firm of Stewart & Chase filed the petitions, which will be argued Monday in Probate Court.

General Clarence R. Edwards, William C. Wall and William A. Morse signed the petitions. Mr. Morse has died since signs were filed.

In a brief preamble, the executors set forth that the 49 claimants had refused to reply to questionnaires sent to them and apparently are not ready to make good their claims at this time.

One woman, not listed, did answer the interrogatories. It was learned indirectly.

When Lotta Crabtree died some months ago, "relatives" sprung up all the way from coast to coast and from Maine to Miami. Persons of the same name, persons claiming to have dined with her in her homes and persons who admitted they had never seen her filed claims and prepared to defend them.

Most of her fortune the actress left to charities in which she was interested while alive. A $2,000,000 fund was established by her will for the benefit of World War veterans and their dependents.

FUNERAL OF SISTER CATHERINE CECILIA

A solemn requiem high mass was celebrated in St. Anne's Church on Milton street, Roslindale, today, at the funeral services for Sister Catherine Cecilia, teacher of music of St. Anne's Parochial School, who died suddenly Monday. The Rev. David F. Regan, pastor of the church and supervisor of the school, was the celebrant. He was assisted by Rev. Henry T. Grady, pastor of the Church of the Most Precious Blood of Hyde Park; the Rev. Daniel J. O'Connor of the Church of the Most Precious Blood, and the Rev. Leo A. O'Leary, curate of St. Anne's Church. The church was thronged.

MAN KILLED IN CRASH WITH "DRY" CARAVAN

Providence, R. I., March 11.—Francis Bassett of Arcis, R. I., died in the Rhode Island Hospital here of injuries suffered when the automobile in which he was riding crashed into the rear truck of a prohibition enforcement squad caravan in Cranston.

The cavalcade of four liquor-laden trucks in charge of Divisional Chief A. R. Stroup of Bangor, Me., and members of the Boston "Flying Squad," had halted on its way from two successful raids in the Pawtuxet Valley to Providence in order to change a punctured tire on one of the trucks. Two of Bassett's companions were slightly injured.

PRESIDENT ACCEPTS RIDDLE RESIGNATION

Washington, March 11.—President Coolidge has accepted the resignation of John W. Riddle as Ambassador to Argentina.

Riddle's resignation was received before Secretary Hughes retired on March 5. It was prompted, it is said, by the inability of Mrs. Riddle, who underwent the ordeal of the sinking of the Lusitania, to make a long sea voyage to Buenos Aires.

MAINE COUNTY SHOWS FARM VALUE INCREASE

Washington, March 11.—First statistics of the 1922 quinquennial census of agriculture were announced today by the Census Bureau, which has established a record equalling the results of the census begun about January 1. Pleasantly, many, Mr. showed a decrease in the number of farms but a decrease in acreage. The value of land and buildings showed an increase, the total being $2,778,852.

MRS. GROVER FACES NEW SUIT

MONTE'S WIFE TAKES NOTES AT TRIAL

Salem, March 11.—Among the throngs of fashionably dressed women filling the Salem courtroom as the sensational testimony in the divorce action of Lyndon V. Grover, millionaire shoe manufacturer, is unfolded, there sits a comely young woman, filling pages after pages with notes on the testimony.

The woman is the war-time bride of "Paul A. Monte," $250,000-a-week shoe clerk, who is accused by the millionaire manufacturer of having broken up his home.

With the millionaire on the stand, reciting incident after incident to his wife's alleged conduct with the shoe clerk, Mrs. Monte, whose husband's real name is said to be Nicholas Wiseman, is busy making notes as closely as she can write.

When questioned by reporters as to why she is following the testimony so closely, she was brief and replied enigmatically.

She refuses to even tell her first name to the reporters. "You will learn all about it later," is the only reply she makes to the interrogations.

It is known, however, that the girl became the bride of Monte or Wiseman in Rhode Island, following a war romance in Vancouver, B. C.

Meanwhile, Grover continues to recite details of his unhappy domestic life with his wife, Eleanor C. Grover, a former actress.

Mrs. Paul A. Monte (upper left), wife of the alleged correspondent in the suit for divorce brought by Lyndon V. PIILGRIMS BOO LONG SAYS HEAR MASS BY POPE

Rome, March 11.—The members of the American Holy Year Pilgrimage from Boston, with a considerable number of tourists and American residents of Rome, gathered in the Vatican this morning to enjoy the honor of a special mass celebrated for them by Pope Pius. Their number was so great that an altar was erected in the Duomo hall especially for the event.

Cardinal O'Connell, the head of the pilgrimage, and the members of his staff occupied the chief places. When the Pope appeared, the entire assembly knelt, and all followed the Pope's ceremony, which was the greatest honor conferred upon the Bostonians. He thanked the Pope for his paternal benevolence, the Vatican officials for their courtesy and the Italian authorities for their splendid efficiency.

Addressing the pilgrims, the Cardinal said they were most privileged persons. Crossing the ocean during the stormiest season they had sailed in a perfect calm; the weather in Italy had also been of the best, and everywhere in this country they had seen nothing but perfect order and discipline.

He concluded by urging the pilgrims to pray for the Pontiff and for the progress and prosperity of their Mother Country, and to return home animated by a stronger faith and loyalty.

Ottawa, Ont., March 11.—Dr. W. J. McInnes, former director of geological survey of Canada, and director of the Victoria Museum, Ottawa, died in a local hospital of a lingering illness, and was buried today.

MRS. STOKES GOES ON STAND

Chicago, March 11.—Mrs. Helen Ellwood Stokes of Denver was called to the witness stand today in the trial of her husband, W. E. D. Stokes, charged with conspiracy to defame her.

Her appearance as witness marked a departure under the Illinois statutes, which prohibit a wife testifying against her husband. Judge Gemmill ruled that her testimony should be so circumvented that it would not be evidence against her husband, but rather a defense of attacks on her name.

BILLAG'S TESTIMONY
Other witnesses were called to testify in denial of testimony that Mrs. Stokes made two overnight railroad trips in 1917 with her young cousin, Hal K. Billig of Chicago.

Dr. Hal C. Billig of Chicago testified that his son was not out of Chicago, except for short weekend trips, in 1917, the latter part of which was fixed by two sleeping car conductors as the time Billig traveled from Denver to Chicago and Chicago to Denver with Mrs. Stokes.

Five witnesses denied the testimony of Stokes in which he had testified that he had had conversations with him and various clues they had given him in his life formerly was a member of the Everleigh Club in Chicago.

Mrs. Stokes was on the witness stand thirty minutes and was not asked any questions by the prosecution. She made a general denial of all accusations made against her by Stokes and J. P. Burke and C. V. Hanson, Chicago sleeping car conductors, who testified she had traveled overnight with men companions.

She was followed on the witness stand by her mother Mrs. Arthur Scott Miller of Denver.

Mrs. Stokes denied that she had shared on one occasion a berth and on another a compartment with a young man en route from Denver to Chicago, or in the opposite direction.

She also denied statements of Stokes as to occurrences in their New York home New Year's eve, 1915. Stokes had testified that twice appeared partly disclosed before her young cousin, Hal K. Billig of Chicago, which the aged defendant testified, was followed by their final separation.

Mrs. Stokes said that she never had ridden on a train with any man other than her husband and that she invariably traveled with a woman companion.

She denied that she ever had been an inmate of the Everleigh Club, notorious for its vice, in the city of Chicago. It was investigation of such alleged infirmities that led to the recent trial of Mr. Stokes and Robert P. Lee, Chicago negro.

BOB LEADS TO DIVORCE SUIT AGAINST BRIDE

He married her on Friday and married her the next Monday—but now William Tallman wants a divorce. Everything was all right with regard to Anna, the husband testified today in the divorce suit against her, when she came to her home in Boston two months after their marriage.

Then she began drinking and "getting wild," he declared, despite his remonstrances. Not only did she sit up a barrage of dishes against him, but she used the broomstick with effect. The climax came, he testified, when she struck him heartily for objecting to her behavior. Anna, short time after his first wife died.

TO CREMATE BODY OF AMERICAN GUY SUICIDE
Leipzig, Germany, March 11.—The body of Miss Helen Reichert, Canadian, 31, music student, which was recovered yesterday from the Elster, is to be cremated Friday in the presence of her parents and the members of the American Consular staff.

Mrs. Reichert disappeared on Feb. 11, leaving a note to friends indicating that she contemplated suicide. Her parents say she was subject to nervous breakdowns before coming to Germany to study.

STRIKE-BREAKERS ARE TAKEN BY SHOE PLANT
Manchester, N. H., March 11.—Most of the 300 employees of the Derry Shoe Company, who have been idle for a fortnight as a result of a strike of lasters, will be back at their benches by the end of the week, the management announced today. The majority of the strike lasters have gone back to work. Strike-breakers are being imported to take the place of lost lasters and pullers. The lasters, which were 30 per cent. less, were paid $1.00 a day.

MAN INJURED IN BLAST AT WEYMOUTH PLANT

Chemicals used in the treatment of sick in the Lousierite Company's factory in East street, Weymouth, exploded, causing damage estimated at from $1,000 to $2,000. The building was shaken, sections of the walls shattered, windows blown out and wall plaster and stucco blown about. Percy Miller of East Weymouth, the only person reported injured, was burned about face and hands. He was given first aid treatment and taken home.

COLDS THAT DEVELOP INTO PNEUMONIA

Chronic Coughs and Persistent Colds Lead to Serious Lung Trouble. You Can Stop Them Now With Creomulsion, an Emulsified Creosote That Is Pleasant to Take

Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with twofold action: it soothes and heats the inflamed membrane and kills the germ. Of all known drugs, Creosote is recognized by the medical fraternity as the greatest healing agency for the treatment of chronic coughs and colds and other forms of throat and lung troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membrane and inflammation while the creosote acts on the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the germ that troubles and destroys the germs that lead to consumption.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of chronic coughs and colds, bronchitis, asthma, catarrhal bronchitis and other forms of throat and lung disease, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold, no matter how long standing, today, at a hearing on the proposed intermediate throughfare to Boston.

TUNNELS AND L ROADWAYS TO SOLVE HUB CONGESTION

Major-General George W. Goethals of Panama Canal fame, called before the joint legislative committee on Metropolitan Affairs and Municipal Finance today, at a hearing on the proposed intermediate throughfare to Boston.

General Goethals was retained by the Boston Retail Trade Board to study street and traffic conditions in the center of the city. The plan for traffic relief, now said to be in the hands of the committee, is the result of research and study over a period of years by Warren E. Locke, prominent engineer, architect, conveyancer and a traffic expert.

Since last July, until recently when a report was made, a recess committee of the Legislature has been studying the problem of the city's traffic.

COOLIDGE ASKS ALL TO AID NEW 'FOREST WEEK'

Washington, March 11 (A.P.)—President Coolidge in a proclamation today called upon the State Governors to cooperate in observance of the week of April 21 to May 3 as American Forest Week, and recommended that, "wherever possible," Arbor Day be celebrated within that week.

American Forest Week will replace the period heretofore designated as Forest Protection Week, and its observance will be directed by a national citizens committee headed by former Governor Frank O. Lowry of Illinois. The committee is to include 100 representatives of national organizations which are being enlisted in an effort to make observance nationwide.

In his proclamation the President urged all patriotic citizens to unite in the common task of forest conservation and renewal. "The forests of the future must be started today," he said. "Our children are dependent on our conservation. We are bound by a solemn obligation from which no evasion and no subterfuge will release us."

"In proclaiming American Forest Week, I desire to bring to the attention of all our people the danger that comes from the neglect of our forests," said the President.

"For several years the nation has observed Forest Protection Week. It is fitting that this observance be enlarged. We have too few acres of the rich and magnificent gift that nature bestowed on us. In our eagerness to use that gift we have stripped our forests; we have permitted fires to lay waste and devour them; we have all too often destroyed the young growth and the seed from which new forests might spring. And though we already feel the first grip of timber shortage, we have barely begun to save and restore."

STATE HOSPITAL FIRE
BEING INVESTIGATED

Worcester, March 11.—State of Massachusetts today are conducting an exhaustive probe of the fire which swept through a ventilator shaft at the Worcester State Hospital, causing a mild panic among the twenty-six patients confined in the ward where the fire was contained.

So far, the cause of the fire has not been determined, but the investigation will likely result in the installation of all fire hazards at the institution and the adoption of more stringent rules to prevent a recurrence.

MOTHER WILL GO TO VANCOUVER, SAYS CHAPLIN

Los Angeles, March 11.—Charlie Chaplin is scheduled to leave today. His mother must leave the United States. A ruling of the immigration department compels her to leave this country before March 26, and states that no further extension will be granted her.

It is probable, according to a statement issued today by the Chaplin studio, that the comedian's mother will go to Vancouver, B. C. It is said the mayor of that city has offered her the keys of the municipality and assured her she will be welcome there as long as she cares to stay.

NEW REO SEDAN LAST WORD IN LUXURY

"Not so very long ago the closed car was considered a luxury, to be owned by people of considerable means," says J. M. Linscott, of the Linscott Motor Company, Reo distributors. "It was designed, not so much for winter driving as for rainy days in summer and for social affairs when the attire of the passengers should be more elaborate than the conventional motoring costume of the day."

With the improvement of mechanical features and the more universal use of automobiles and dependence upon them, however, there came the demand for winter driving, and with our present provisions for clearing the roads the use of automobiles in winter for other than pleasure touring has become almost as great as in the summer months. In spite of this fact, until the past year or two, the cost of closed cars remained at a figure quite disproportionate to that of an open model of the same make. There seemed to be a prevalent idea that a closed car must be upholstered far more luxuriously than an open car and that the weather-proof body must be accompanied by a lavish assortment of extras and accessories of all kinds.

"Two wretched developments with a growing sense of their futility, realizing that not yet had there been introduced a model that was the equal of the open body in price, spaciousness, and convenience, giving at the same time the absolute weather protection of the higher-priced sedan."

"For a long time Reo planned how this might be accomplished. At length, by scientific designing and efficient arrangement of manufacturing schedules and methods, and especially by the judicious use of its tremendous financial and purchasing power, Reo prepared to give its answer to the universal closed car demand. Since this is the Twentieth Anniversary of the founding of the

FURNITURE FOLK FURNISH FUN

Three hundred employees of the C. E. Osgood Company made merry at their annual dance party in Beech Street Bungalow, North Cambridge.

Reo Motor Car Company, it was decided to make this special offering commemorative of the occasion, and it was called "The Twentieth Anniversary" sedan.

"The lines of this new Reo are graceful and in vogue with the latest trend. Seats are low and comfortable, and every feature is designed to give the serviceability, comfort, and protection of a higher-priced sedan at the same price as an open car of the same make."

The 300 employees of the C. E. Osgood Company made merry at the fifth annual dinner-dance of the workers at the Beech street bungalow, Beech street, Cambridge. The affair was originally scheduled for February 24, but was postponed on account of the death of Charles E. Osgood. Because of the death of Mr. Osgood, none of the members of the Osgood family attended the affair.

The program opened with the annual dinner following which there were brief addresses by Howard B. Johnson, treasurer of the company, and L. C. Clifford, secretary.

Following the dinner, dancing was enjoyed until a late hour. There were several vocal numbers by Miss Annie Laurie, head of the firm's music department, while several novelty dances, including a "poster" dance, were among the evening's features.

RICKENBACKER EARNS QUICK SUCCESS

One of the outstanding features of the automobile industry during the past year was the remarkable growth and expansion of the Rickenbacker Motor Company. This organization, despite the fact that the year was one of lean earnings for many companies, and although it is only four years old, enjoyed a business comparable with many of the older automobile producing concerns.

The company started production in the spring of 1922, and through careful and conservative management has steadily forged ahead until today its product is one of the best known in the trade.

The financial development of the Rickenbacker Company is also a feature that is attracting favorable attention among the leaders of the automobile industry.

Another of the recent developments in the affairs of the Rickenbacker Company was its purchase on January 1 of the Tippanee Body Company, the third largest manufacturer of closed bodies in the country.

CHEVROLET POPULAR WITH SHOW PATRONS

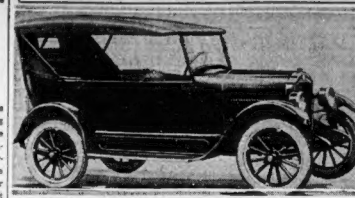

That the new Chevrolet stands high in public favor is evidenced in the interest displayed in both the open and closed models at the Boston Auto Show exhibition of the Buick-Chevrolet Company, Chevrolet distributor for New England.

There is hardly a feature of the Chevrolet that is not new, improved or re-designed, while most of these features are of the type and quality characteristic of higher priced cars.

All models have full stream-line bodies, Duco finish in colors which make them the most beautiful cars Chevrolet has ever produced.

Improvements in the Chevrolet motor include heavier crankshaft with larger connecting rod bearings, longer and larger center main bearings, shorter intake manifold brings the carburetor closer to the cylinder; rocker arms and valves enclosed.

NEW STAR TOURING

The Star touring car meets with great public approval. It is powered with the million dollar motor.

The days when a purchaser of a motor car made his choice largely upon paint, prettiness, pretensions and promises are gone. Price still is a factor. More so than ever before, for the experienced motorist has long since discovered the automobile to be a utility rather than a luxury.

Thirty-four Star owners report that they drove an aggregate of $73,171 miles without spending a cent for repairs.

Sixty-eight Star owners report that they drove an aggregate of 1,334 months, or 163 years, without spending a cent.

Three hundred and fifty-two Star owners report that they drove an aggregate of 4,777,486 miles and spent $2,181.68 for mechanical repairs and parts, an average of $5.74 a year.

Four hundred and fifty Star owners report that they drove an aggregate of 4,888 months, or 134 years, and spent $4,597.08 for mechanical repairs and parts, an average of $5.74 a year.

ARROW-LITE MAKES GOOD AUTO SIGNAL

The Arrow-Lite automobile signal is a lamp attached to the rear view, her plate holder and serves as a tail-light, slow or stop signal and left and right turn signal. The left and right turns are indicated by two arrows, one pointed to the left, the other to the right. These arrows are controlled from the steering wheel by means of a nickel-plated handle connected to a switch attached to the steering post.

Mr. Richard H. Howard says: "This lamp is the only one of its kind that can show three signals at once or two signals at once for instance, upon stopping it will show stop, and if upon starting you want to show you are going to turn, it will show which ever way you desire to turn, even though your stop signal is showing and your tail light burning. The lamp is as near as humanly automatic as to make it fool proof and unconfusing."

HOW TO COOK THE LENTEN EGG.

MOST of us are familiar with the old saying that a pound of egg is equal in nutritive value to a pound of beef. Like milk, eggs contain every element necessary for the proper upbuilding of the body, but because the nutrition that they contain is highly concentrated, they should be combined with starchy foods such as bread and potatoes so that the stomach may have enough to act upon.

Good news comes to me that eggs are going to be very much lower, and I am going to give a talk very soon about putting eggs to use in waterclosets and about other preserving mediums, but for today I am confining myself just to some recipes that I hope will give variety to the Lenten egg.

RECIPE NO. 1010.

SCRAMBLED EGGS WITH TOMATO.

Boil together 1 1/2 cups of canned tomatoes and 2 tablespoons of sugar for 5 minutes. Fry together 4 tablespoons of butter and one slice of onion for 5 minutes, watching carefully that it doesn't burn. Remove the onion, add the tomatoes, 1/2 teaspoon of pepper and six slightly beaten eggs. Cook 15 minutes and serve with toast.

RECIPE NO. 1009.

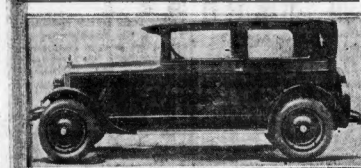

STUFFED POTATOES WITH EGGS.

Boil two cups of hot potatoes, add 2 tablespoons of butter, 1/3 cup of evaporated milk or thin cream and 1/2 teaspoon of salt. Beat hard, add 1 1/2 pimento, rub through a strainer and beat thoroughly. Fill in a buttered baking dish, make as many cavities as you wish to serve eggs, slip an egg in each cavity and bake until set.

FATHER AND SON FOUND DEAD FROM GAS POISON

New Bedford, March 11.—James Barlow, senior, aged eighty and his son, Samuel, aged fifty-two, were found dead from accidental asphyxiation at their home, No. 1245 Broad street. They had apparently been dead since Sunday night. The dead son was found in his bed. Samuel was sitting in a rocking chair in the kitchen. The father was leaning from a back in the rubber tubing connected with a gas pipe.

This model of the Rollin line is one of the smartest cars of the show. The Brougham seats five comfortably.

WILLYS-KNIGHT AND OVERLAND IN SPOTLIGHT

Attention of the automobile buyer and of the motoring public is once more focused on Willys-Overland. Among the features of the annual motor car show is a display of Willys-Knight and Overland models, including the new six-cylinder cars.

With sweeping lines and flowing contours, radiator narrow and deeper, giving that aristocratic sleekness so marked in the costliest cars of European builders, the new designs are models that captivate the eyes with their luxury and good taste. Sharing the spotlight with the new Willys-Knight six are two Overland six smart and distinctive enclosed models.

The new Willys-Knight six-cylinder line includes touring, roadster, four-passenger coupe, coupe-sedan, sedan and brougham models, each finished in accordance with the very latest vogue in body design and coloring, and mounted on a 125-inch chassis of exceptional sturdiness.

DODGE BROTHERS AGAIN ELECTS HAYNES AS HEAD

Frederick J. Haynes, president and general manager of Dodge Brothers, announces that plans for a very large increase in production are now in effect and that it is the desire of all the officers of the company, re-elected at the recent annual meeting, that 1925 will easily outstrip all previous records.

Records of the annual meeting confirmed previous reports that 1924 was by far the most successful year in Dodge Brothers history. Dodge Brothers were second among N. A. C. C. members and third in the industry as a whole, both in the number of units produced and in money volume.

The year closed with a total production of 225,883 motor vehicles having a total value of nearly $200,000,000. These official figures vary only slightly from the estimate announced during the New York automobile show early in January.

DWARF TROUPE DELIGHTS ORPHANS

Here they are—some of the 250 orphan children en route to the Orphan Asylum, as guests of the Boston Evening American, to see Irving's Imperial Midgets.

Today's group is the second group of 250 entertained by the Evening American. It takes three of the huge Gray Line buses, making two trips each, to carry the entire crew. Seldom do these children come to the joy of sitting in buses at the theatre before the anxious eyes of other children in the audience, but that's the pleasure that half of these orphan children enjoyed, while the remainder, numbering among them fifty girls, occupied the entire three rows of the first balcony.

The youngsters laughed uproariously and clapped vigorously as the twenty-five tiny men and women of the dwarf troupe danced, danced, danced and did acrobatics on the Orpheum stage.

Many a "kid" echoed the remark of Johnnie Martin to his chum, Tony, as they marched out of the theatre after the show:

"Gee, Tony, but this is swell style!"

Besides the midget act, so dear to children, Johnnie was thinking of these three hours in the luxury of a tax seat, the long program of Lew's circuit acts, the feature movie, and the wonderful bus ride that preceded and followed the show.

The buses were provided through the kindness of A. S. Caplan, Bank Bay Florida, who is interested in the Gray Line Company and who took three buses off their regular work of handling special parties as well as sight-seers in order to take the orphan children to the Orpheum.

James A. McGinn, Jr., No. 185 Winthrop road, Brookline.

Mrs. Norman Day, Grove street, South East.

Frank S. Holmes, No. 3 Adams street, Braintree.

Many readers of the Boston Evening American who are numbered among our prize Crossword Puzzle fans ask what the rules of the contest are. The following letter was received from Mary L. Biddow of Framingham:

"Enclosed please find what I think is my solution and puzzle solution. It seems to me that I never saw my name on the list, but I admit there are educational advantages in solving the puzzle."

"I have tried to have the explanations attached when sending them in? I have sent them both with and without the puzzle with just the puzzle and my name were thrown out because the other section was cut off."

"I have tried to do these puzzles with pen and ink, as I know they would look better; but they are always answered. Are pencil solutions thrown out?"

"The only other way to insure a good clean copy is the typewriter, but I always thought that would be discarded because all cannot do their puzzles that way."

"I am still living in hopes, even if I die in despair, of winning a five dollar 'puzzle money day.'"

This letter is printed because it is similar to several we have received. The answers to the questions asked are:

It is not necessary to have explanations attached to puzzles when sent in and the contestant may use pencil, ink or typewriter in making out solutions. The prizes are awarded solely upon merit. In other words, correctness, neatness and originality in arrangement are the only things that count in the awarding of prizes.

BENEFIT DANCE FOR WOUNDED VETS TONIGHT

The third annual dance under the direction of the Ladies' Auxiliary to Herbert J. Wolf Post No. 114, V. F. W., will be held in the Dorchester Women's Club House tonight.

The proceeds will be used for charitable work for the veterans at the West Roxbury Hospital.

Three ladies aid the soldiers with never so much as the slightest hint of forgetfulness. The direction of the dance is in the hands of the following committee: Ida Cohen, chairman; Emma Gohardt, Frances Cohen, Beale Spillman, Esther Friedman, Bertha Polansky, Anna Ober and Jessie K. Isaacs.

Never before did Boston's Jewish, both before and after, turn out in such numbers as at Hadassah's annual Purim Ball in the Hotel Somerset.

Especially brilliant were the young girls, members of the Boston Unit of the National Junior Hadassah, who added color and charm and scintillating vivaciousness to the affair, one of the finest staged by any organization this season.

The ball room was virtually aglow with enjoyment and content.

The dollars and cents realized spell greater happiness for orphans in Palestine. The money they have their clothing and hospital supplies, aid the nurses training institution and benefit all medical care and sanitation work in that part of the world.

LADIES VISITOR AT SOX CAMP

Judge Impressed With Showing of Fohlin; to Visit Braves and Yanks Next

By FRANK C. LANE.

New Orleans, La., March 11.—Judge Landis, in his tour in the baseball camps, arrived in New Orleans and watched the Red Sox work out. He was much impressed with the showing made by Manager Fohlin's squad.

Landis left last night for St. Petersburg, Fla., to visit the Boston Braves and the Yanks the next day.

There is an optimistic feeling about the Red Sox camp that is not only harbored by the players themselves but also the stockholders of the club.

Dr. Robert Drury of Columbus, O., a lifelong friend of President Bob Quinn's, and a stockholder, arrived in town last night, and after watching the boys perform yesterday, was bullish in his praise of the possibilities of the club for this year's race.

When questioned on the ability of the rookies brigade he was quick to answer:

There's a feeling of good fellowship about their work, and should those young players display that kind of baseball talent in the season, I don't for the world of me see why it is to keep the Red Sox out of the first division."

Dr. Drury played professional baseball years ago in the New York State League and is a mighty good judge of baseball talent. He is down here for his health, also an insight on the possibilities of the club the coming season.

The boys were not at all short in yesterday's workout as they have been. In fact many of them are hoping for a rainy day so they can rest up, but some are keen about showing their signs of fatigue.

Manager Fohlin has cut down the tempo practice of the pitchers. The boys have been ordered to cut loose if they feel right, and have with the exception of Howard Ehmke.

The pitching problem is apparent. By all set, for Manager Fohlin has many bright prospects to choose from. Wilbur, Lurey, Kallio, Huffer, and Winfield appear to have sufficient experience and talent to prove a big help to seasoned veterans like Ehmke, Ferguson, Quinn and Patterson.

MANDELL AND VACCA SIGNED BY LYNN CLUB

The Casino A. C. of Lynn has arranged what is regarded as the best show of the season for the offering next Monday night.

The Garvey of Clinton and Buff Jovers of East Boston are paired for six rounds and Jimmy Hanson of Chelsea and Jerry Vialle of Beverly are billed for the same distance.

The use of Chinatown Walter Riley of Worcester will meet in an eight-round bout.

Johnny Ryan of Brookline and Johnny Moore of Boston are down for eight rounds.

In the final ten-round bout Tony Mandell the Worcester Firecracker, and Johnny Vacca of Brighton are paired and it should develop into one of the fastest bantam scraps ever staged in New England.

This is the fortieth anniversary of an article of an old-time athlete by George V. Tuohy, famous sports promoter, who has been prominent in athletics for thirty-five years.

wrestlers of America, in a match for the heavyweight championship. I had previously managed Jenkins, but Tom's natural indolence caused me to part with him, and I then took McLeod in hand, feeling certain that, given an even break, he could defeat the Cleveland man. This in spite of their terrific battle in Cleveland a year previous, which Jenkins won as much by the aid of some friends as by any superior wrestling skill.

In that Cleveland affair Jenkins was badly beaten in the first fall, but during the rest Dan was placed in a cold room facing toward Lake Erie, with a chill wind blowing. Nearly 30 minutes elapsed before the men were called back to the mat, with McLeod nearly frozen while Jenkins had recovered from the mauling he had received. Jenkins took the next two falls in that event and the final decision.

TIPPED OFF FRIENDS

McLeod was certain that if he could get Jenkins under neutral conditions he could win. But Jenkins did not care to take on the "little Scot."

Dan, who had come to Worcester to reside, kept after Tom, but meantime keeping up the appearance that he was neglecting his training. The contrary was the case, however. Dan then went to Buffalo and loaded around, did no actual training there. In fact, he spent most of his time at the Fort Erie race track, all during the time that Dan was out of shape, and then only did he agree to the meeting.

Just as soon as the match was made, however, Dan tipped off his friends not to bet on him, giving as a reason that he would accede to Jenkins' demand that the match be decided at the ball park in Cleveland during that summer, and that in order to later get Jenkins he would make no serious effort to win.

As a result Tom "won" that match in straight hits, never realizing that Dan made the thing possible in the hour of creating a false confidence on the part of Jenkins.

FALLS INTO TRAP

This is exactly what happened. Tom was certain after the Cleveland affair, the inside workings of which he knew nothing about so that when a match was broached to be decided at Worcester Tom fell into the trap. The date was set for Christmas afternoon. The affair was promoted by Jerry Regan.

Dan stepped on the mat in perfect shape, while Jenkins Tom, although never really out of condition, was not at the best, as he was a trifle high in flesh and probably weighed 215 to McLeod's 175.

Jenkins' weight counted greatly in his favor in the first fall, which went over an hour, with Dan setting the speediest kind of a record in order to get to the top, but after an hour of brilliant work Tom secured the fall, amid tremendous excitement.

It was almost 8 o'clock by this time and a polo game was scheduled to be played that evening, 215 to open at 7 o'clock. Jenkins learned of this and when the second period was called Jenkins went after Dan with all the power he had.

HURLEY'S KIND DEED

Right here Pat Hurley showed the stuff of which he was made.

"Never mind the polo game, boys, go right ahead and have the match finished. The game can wait," he said.

After wrestling another fifteen minutes Jenkins suggested a draw. "No draw goes," growled McLeod. Jenkins wrestled a few minutes more and then stopped cold, and the referee awarded the match to McLeod, carrying with it the American championship.

Pat Hurley passed out some years ago and his place in sports in Worcester has passed from Hurley.

Such popularity must be deserved

In one great success after another, George M. Cohan has won a nation-wide distinction as actor, playwright and producer. None may challenge his record for clean hits. Such success must be deserved.

To be chosen by millions, even a cigarette must have "made good." Chesterfield's record gains, for example, are no accident, but rather the result of sheer merit—greater fragrance and a more pleasing taste.

"LACK OF TIME" OFTEN A SIGN OF INDIFFERENCE

Are you one of those persons with only one idea or plan, and if it is found impossible of realization, do you sit around and wait? If house-cleaning time is near, you don't do a thing toward setting your house in order, for "it will be soon time to tear up, so why worry about keeping things in order?" If you have a leaky roof or the furnace needs attention, you wait until there is a flood of rain or some other catastrophe happens before you baste yourself. Now you may be busy all day in the work-day world, but the house must be kept alive and span and you should feel responsible for repairs at the proper time. You may not be able to make them, but at least you can see that this work is put into competent hands. That excuse that you did not remember that the back door needed a new key and that you haven't time for other little odd jobs is simply a sign of carelessness and lack of interest on your part.

DAILY SHORT STORY

JERRY REDMAN, SECRET SERVICE

By Mabel Ruth Jackson

JERRY REDMAN hurried over to the dripping window of the Costello's crowded, odorous sitting room and stared out at the grimy snow in the yard. The American Manufacturing Company's payroll of twenty-five hundred dollars was coming all week ago last Wednesday. A car with three men in it drove up to the office of the company Wednesday, about half an hour before closing time. Two men jumped out, entered the office and held up the force with guns and made them hand over the payroll. The police began working on the case right away, of course, but couldn't seem to get anywhere. Then, a few days later, headquarters was tipped off that the Costello family knew something about it. In fact, the information declared that the money was concealed somewhere near their place.

Felt Confident

"Oh, Jerry," murmured Amy in her soft little voice, throwing her arms around his neck. "You just show them! They don't know what a brilliant mind my husband has or they have called on you first instead of me."

Jerry had grinned at amiable Jerry, but he couldn't help feeling a little more confident. Amy had a mind of her own if she did seem a little soft feminine creature. The two had graduated from the university with almost equal honors and had then committed the same grade, so the relatives on both sides declared, of getting married. He must make good.

"This is the situation, Redman," the Chief had elucidated succinctly about in his chair and looking kindly at Jerry. "The American Manufacturing Company's payroll of twenty-five hundred dollars was coming all week ago last Wednesday. A car with three men in it drove up to the office of the company Wednesday, about half an hour before closing time. Two men jumped out, entered the office and held up the force with guns and made them hand over the payroll. The police began working on the case right away, of course, but couldn't seem to get anywhere. Then, a few days later, headquarters was tipped off that the Costello family knew something about it. In fact, the information declared that the money was concealed somewhere near their place."

No Progress

"Now," the police have practically turned the Costello place upside down and inside out—nothing doing—so, the American Company has called us in on the case. I sent Casey and Martine out there and they made as much progress as the police did and no more."

The Chief paused, lighted a cigar, shook out the match-flame and tossed the ash into his waste basket. Jerry watched these trivial motions with disproportionate attention. The cigar well lighted, the Chief took it out and turned to Jerry with a question smile.

"Jerry's great change, Redman," he said. "I'm not what you see so, Frankly, I haven't any hopes that a youngster like you can succeed where two such old hands as Casey and Martine have failed. But you never can tell. I've known strange things to happen. Take a couple of men with you and go out to Costello's. Don't put any trust in them. They haven't a good reputation. Jerry had complied with the Chief's directions and here he was in the Costello home. He had been here an hour so far and had accomplished nothing. It had not followed the methods of the police or his seniors of the Secret Service. But instead, had tried to learn something of the character of the family. They were a picturesque lot with their curly black hair, dark eyes and smooth complexion. The children were rather bold and daring and Jerry had found himself no match for their keen, street-sharpened wit, of which, indeed, he felt himself to be the target.

Rather Lovely

He had studied the mother, Cecily, to meet of the Latin women, she had not said prematurely but was really rather lovely in a soft-eyed madonna-like way. Jerry, an art lover, had pictured her in clinging graceful robes of virgin blue, her black hair parted and drawn smoothly over her small ears. To be sure, it was bobbed and marooned just now, but imagination can do anything. She had looked at him in such a hopeless, wounded way that he had, in spite of himself, felt an unwarranted intruder.

He turned away from the window and studied the room before him. It was a combination of parlor and sitting room. A victoria stood in one corner, covered with a bright pink satin drape. There was a shiny, golden-rod marble chair with green velvet cushions, an overstuffed davenport, upholstered in blue, stood against a side wall. Jerry knew that those cushioned pieces of furniture had been thoroughly searched for the missing money, which had been in the form of bills and currency. His eyes wandered across the gaudy rug to the room beyond.

Room For Show

This was a small dining room and was apparently for show rather than use, as the family evidently ate in the kitchen. There was a table in the center with six chairs grouped primly around the room. The table, Jerry thought, was empty like one that had been in his own home years ago and now economically put to use in his own small apartment—golden oak of rather heavy construction, with five massive legs. There flashed into his mind a remembrance of losing and finding of his watch a few weeks ago. It had disappeared from his dressing room dressing and he and Amy had searched everywhere about the small flat, with no result. They felt quite sure that Junior had taken it for a new plaything but it was impossible to get any information from his baby intelligence. Then, one afternoon a few days later, a playmate, several years older, crawling under the dining room table, had brought out the missing watch. It had been laid on the broad crossbar which was fastened the middle leg of the table.

From The Movies

With this in mind, he strode quickly into the dining-room, and stepping on his hand over the crossbar. The only result, however, was a burst of dust on his hand and he took out his handkerchief and wiped it off, utterly baffled. He would have to give it up, he thought with intense regret. He would have to report to the Chief that he had fallen down on the job. Jamming on his hat, he opened the door, then stopped suddenly and gazed rapidly. He had not been heard and he knew that a quick suppressed gasp of dismay from Amy would give him away.

He turned so quickly that small Tony was caught in the act of sticking out his tongue at him. Tony's idea of detective work was learned from the movies. The movie detective was invariably a heavy-set man with a fast brown cigar in the corner of his mouth. The slight, athletic looking young man with the thick blond hair, frank, good-looking face and courteous speech was a joke.

But Jerry had had an inspiration. "Turn that dining-room table upside down!" he ordered and the two men obeyed promptly. Grappling one of the casters, Jerry pulled. It did not give at once but with a little more exertion, came out suddenly and revealed to his exultant gaze wads of green bills stuffed tight inside the hollow leg.

"Look out!" yelled one of the men and Jerry turned just in time to grasp Mrs. Costello's wrist and send the long thin-bladed knife clattering to the floor. Her madonna-like face was convulsed with rage.

Turned The Trick

"You've turned the trick all right, Mr. Redman," observed one of the men admiringly.

There was a hint of wonder and admiration in the Chief's voice, too, as he congratulated Jerry. But Amy's admiration was unfeigned with wonder. It was only full of loving confidence, the knew her man would "make good."

HOW A HONEY-COMB IS MADE

By Foxy Grandpa.

"LET'S go out and see what the bees are doing today," said Bobby.

Now there is nothing in the world more interesting than a beehive and I advise every boy and girl who can to keep one. Besides, you don't like honey?

Out into the garden we went, and sure enough something worth watching was happening.

"Look, Foxy Grandpa!" exclaimed Bobby. "They even have acrobats in the hive. Look at those bees! Why, they're hanging onto each other, making a regular bridge!"

"They are not bridge-builders," I said; "but they are building something else, and something else built with just as much skill and precision and adroitness as men build bridges."

"What are they building, Foxy Grandpa?" asked Bobby, as he looked at the bees with his eyes on him.

"They are making a comb," I answered.

We drew closer, and I said: "Now watch, Bobby. Look carefully under their wings—those fellows that are hanging together. Under their wings, on the lower surface of each body, are six little pockets. These pockets are called 'wax pockets.' It is from them that the comb is made."

"Now these bees may hang together for hours, and at the end of that time a perfect little plate of wax will have exuded from their wax-pockets. Then they will start work to build the comb."

"Then what will they do?" asked Bobby.

Then they will start kneading the wax with their jaws, until it is like clay," I answered.

"Now they will build their foundation for a double set of cells. And each cell has six sides."

"How do they know how to do that?" asked Bobby.

"They just do," I answered. "And if we could see into a cell we would see that the bees who are making the cell keeps feeling the walls with its legs, to see that it is square."

"In a newly made comb you will see that each cell is lined with a dark substance. That is either the gum from the honeycomb tree or from the honeycomb tree. They fly to these trees, scrape it off, and bring it back to the hive."

"To think they know one tree from another!" murmured Bobby.

"It's a wonderful thing that, Bobby," said I, "all of the cells are not alike. Between the cells the bees leave corridors through which to pass and there are three different kinds of cells."

"First there are the cells which are intended for nurseries and in which as soon as they are finished the queen bee lays an egg to hatch. And where the worker grub lives when hatched. There are larger cells for the drone grubs. These are the cells which are a store-room for honey."

"I hope they hurry up and get done in three weeks. A very little bee as we turned to go into the house."

Need Easter Dresses
Helping Hand Editor:
I have someone who has some pants for boys, 7, 8, 10 and 12? They are desperately in need of them. Also my two girls, 11 and 13, are to be in some Easter exercises at church, but have no white dresses and they feel badly, as the others will all wear white. I would appreciate it so much if some kind friend had such dresses they had use for. My husband isn't working and I haven't so much as a decent house dress. I take size 36 or 38. Thanking you so much.

MEDITATIONS OF A WIFE

By Helen Rowland

I don't recall the wedding day ever that a man begins to wonder what his wife is for.

The old-fashioned girl could make a dollar go a lot further than the girl of today—but she couldn't make it come better half so quickly.

The average woman is miserable over three men at once; the one she's trying to get rid of, the one who's trying to get rid of her, and the one she's trying to get.

Nowadays, most of a man's "love-making" consists in saying nothing with great dramatic fervor.

The hardest thing of earth for a woman to forgive a man is for not falling in love with her when she wanted him to; and the hardest thing on earth for a man to forgive a woman is for falling in love with him when he DIDN'T want her to.

The waning of love is like the waning of a sunset; every woman watches it until the day, rose gray has passed into cold indifference, and turns away in a sigh of relief.

Every now and then somebody decides that a woman has the right to do the courting and the proposing; but, dear me, the girl of today doesn't ask the "right"—all she asks is the opportunity.

An individual is a woman who returns to bob her hair, her skirt, her make-up or her ideals, so long as they are becoming and "suit her style."

You may wear a chip-styled and brighten up the eyes, but nothing will keep you young, if you let the heart see all the illusions grow dim and tarnished.

A woman is never too absorbed in her own love affair to stop to take a vital interest in another woman's affairs and heartaches.

Love is like a spring cold; the only way to cure it is to break it up with a violent antidote before it gets a real hold on you.

No more will weak, thin, unfortunate children cry in protest when the nasty, fishy, horrible-smelling cod liver oil is brought.

Medical science progresses rapidly, and now you can get at your druggist's real, genuine cod liver oil in sugar-coated tablets that young and old can take with ease and pleasure.

Even the run-down and skinny grown-ups, who ought to take cod liver oil, because it really is the greatest vitamin food and builder of healthy flesh in the world, will feel extremely joyful when they find this welcome news.

Of course, doctors have been prescribing cod liver oil in tablet form under another name for several years, but it is only of late that one can walk into a drugstore and get a box of these flesh-producing tablets just as easy as a bottle of cough syrup.

This, run-down anemic men, women and children who used to grow strong and take on flesh as cod liver oil got a box of McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Compound Tablets and if you don't gain 5 pounds in 10 days just get your money back.

One woman gained fifteen pounds in five weeks, according to her own doctor—another ten pounds in three weeks. A very little child, aged nine, twelve pounds in seven months, and two years with other children and had a good appetite.

Just ask for McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Compound Tablets. Any good druggist will tell you that they are the greatest flesh and health builder. Only 60 cents for 60 tablets—don't forget that they are wonderful for old folks.

BOSTON AMERICAN

NO LARGEST EVENING CIRCULATION IN NEW ENGLAND

Never before has industrial skill been so generously rewarded. No longer do the overcrowded professions offer the only means of fair compensation or the only avenues to social position.

In Boston, the "motor-minded" boy can save $12 a week while learning to be an electrician. He attends a co-operative part-time high school and he neither works nor studies "overtime."

How Minute Men of Part-Time High Schools Help Boston Boys to "Earn While Learning"

WHAT THE MASTER of one of Dorchester's elementary schools said to George Spelvin's mother was:

"Mrs. Spelvin, I would not hurt your feelings for the world, but it is a waste of time and money to continue George in this school. He could not be graduated here if he remained with us twenty years."

George's mother received the news calmly. Some women, in her place, would have "flown off the handle"; would have upbraided the school, its teachers, its principal, the School Committee and everyone connected with it.

SHE knew the schoolmaster must be interested in George in a friendly way or else he would not have sent for her.

So, like a wise as well as loving mother, Mrs. Spelvin asked for advice, and, having obtained it, was quick to act upon it.

As a result of this talk, only a few years ago, in one of the offices of a Dorchester schoolhouse, George Spelvin, little more than a boy as yet, is a competent electrician, employed by the telephone company at a wage of $43.60 per week. He owns a few shares of telephone stock, too, purchased on the part-payment plan.

But George Spelvin wasn't thrown out of a Dorchester elementary school to land immediately on the payroll of a corporation at a man's wage.

Following the interview between a kindly, devoted, earnest teacher and the "best mother in the world," which they all are, the Spelvin boy was enrolled in a pre-vocational school. Completing his elementary training there in due time, he presented himself, with his diploma, at the Charlestown Co-operating Industrial High School. Here he remained a student for five years, and from here he went to the telephone company.

The co-operating industrial high school in Monument Square, Charlestown, although it constitutes the largest one-trade department conducted in connection with the public schools of the United States, is one of SIX such institutions in the school organization of Boston.

The Charlestown school goes in for electrical work. Hyde Park prepares its boys for the metal trades. Dorchester High turns out cabinetmakers, shipbuilders, piano builders, lumber estimators.

The boys of Brighton High go in for automobile work, those of East Boston leave school as full-fledged machinists, while the graduates of Jamaica Plain High School—referring in each case solely to the co-operating industrial department of the institution—are thoroughly trained in one or another of the branches of agriculture.

And one of the beauties of the system, which has reached its present state of development in less than thirteen years, is that the boys of these six high schools earn while they learn.

They "earn while they learn." Remember that, you fathers and mothers of Boston who have been lashed by so many children that giving each of them an education threatens at times to be too much of a strain upon the family purse. And do YOU hear it in mind also, you parents in better circumstances, who discover to your chagrin that while young John cannot be MADE to take an interest in books, he is forever and always "tinkering with something."

The modern educator says of a boy like John that he is "motor-minded." Books, as such, hold no interest for him. He wants to be doing something, making something, working at something, experimenting with something. If you are wise, and fortunate, you will find a place for him in one of the co-operating industrial high schools.

Co-operating? Why, "co-operating?"

Through one of the officials of the school, called a co-ordinator, each school arranges and maintains co-operative relations with a number of high-grade employers in its own line. Charlestown High, for example, has such relations with:

Boston Armature Works, motor repairs.
Frank Ridlon Company, motor repairs.

Westinghouse Electric & Manufacturing Company, switchboards.

Simplex Electric Heating Company, electric heating apparatus.

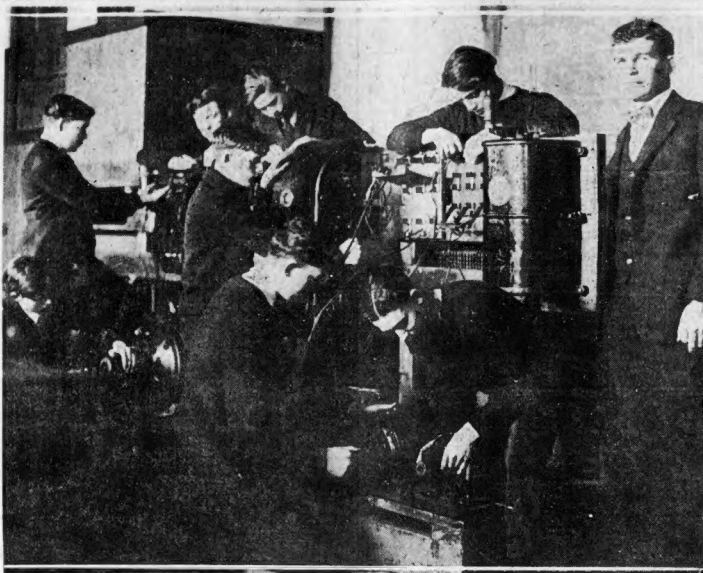

Chelsea Radio Company, radio equipment.

Palmer Electric Manufacturing Company, electric switching devices.

New England Telephone & Telegraph Company, machine switching department.

Service Electric & Manufacturing Company, electrical fixtures.

IN THE CLASS-ROOM BUT ON THE PAY-ROLL!

In this picture are seen members of one of the classes of the part-time Charlestown High School taking the co-operative course for electricians. Other members of the class are at work this week in the shops of fourteen important firms or corporations. Next week, the boys in the picture go into the shops and the boys who are working this week return to the classroom. So they alternate, throughout three years of a four-year course. The "earn-and-learn" plan!

"Industry is not organized to make possible the training of young workers. The old apprenticeship system is a thing of the past. Operatives are not taught successive processes, because of the feeling that production thereby would be curtailed. Special operations require little general knowledge of an entire business and many young workers remain on unskilled jobs at low pay even when possessing capacity for skilled labor. Employees who know an entire business are scarce. For these reasons, the number of workers prepared for promotion to positions as foremen and superintendents through industry alone is inadequate.

"Homes are not always in a position to give the guidance and instruction which their children need.

"Industry is not so organized that this guidance and instruction can be given in employment.

"Part time * * * schools offer the most promising agency for doing this work."

—From a Bulletin Issued by the Boston Public Schools

F. W. Morse Company, auto and radio parts.
Western Electric Company, telephone department.
Wireless Specialty Apparatus Company, radio equipment.

Martin Keough Company, electrical contractors.

Most of the boys of the Charlestown High School are on the payroll of one or another of these high-grade organizations. That is, with the exception of the boys of the first-year class.

The FIRST year of the course in electrical mechanics is spent in the classroom, taking English, industrial mathematics, bench work, elementary industrial science, physical training and hygiene. The "bench work" includes two periods of mechanical drawing and prepared work. "Physical training" is another way of saying military drill.

In his second year, the student begins to be a money-maker. One of the concerns on the list printed above calls for a boy and is given TWO boys.

TWO boys, "A" and "B," let us say, in order that while one is in the classroom the other may be in the workshop, week and week about. If "A" is in school for the week, taking the regular instruction, his alternate, "B," will be found at work for the employer. In the following week it will be "A" who goes to the employer, while "B" will be back in school. If, for any reason, the boy at work is unable to report, notice is sent to the school and his alternate takes his place in the shop.

The co-operating employers are men of vision, who realize that such an arrangement with the public schools of Boston is BOUND to bring about a constant supply of better trained mechanics.

In each of the second, third and fourth years of his course the student spends 1,512 hours in employment. Some of the Charlestown boys are being paid as high as $24 and $27 a week. In the fifth year, the student does not go to school, but spends ALL his time in the shop, completing his apprenticeship. Not even now, nor for a long time afterwards, does the co-ordinator lose contact with him. The co-ordinator looks after his interests in the matter of working conditions, wages, the further experience and training to be obtained by rotation, and so on. If, as conceivably may happen later on when the list of co-operating employers begins to lengthen, any employer should attempt to exploit youthful labor unfairly, the co-ordinator will be alert to check that.

The result of this co-ordination is the gradual development of young men capable of assuming the responsibilities of junior manhood. The co-ordinator investigates complaints of tardiness and inattention. He is quick to check a tendency to neglect the work of the "school" week. There have been instances when, in order to make the youngsters realize that he IS a schoolboy, and not merely connected with an "employment agency," it was necessary to deprive him of his opportunity to take "outside" work. In these and other cases, such as the occasional lack of work enough to go round, the student spends his alternate week in the school's OWN workshop.

Of the 900 students of Charlestown High, 400 are boys and 500 of these are enrolled in the industrial department. There are 12 instructors, the co-ordinator—in charge under the head master—being Mr. Maurice J. Moriarty. Each instructor, before identifying himself with the teaching staff, had at least eight years' experience as a journeyman mechanic. Practically all have taken special courses at Harvard or at Boston University.

The total number of students enrolled in the six co-operating industrial high schools is approximately 1,000. The metal trades boys of Hyde Park go into such establishments as that of the B. F. Sturtevant Company. Dorchester boys are able to tie up with concerns like the Skinner Organ, or George Lawley & Sons, shipbuilders. The Worthington Pump, the Mead Morrison Company, the Duncan Brass Foundry are among those who take the boys of East Boston.

Cadillac, Peerless, Wills Sainte Claire Company, Packard and others present priceless opportunities to the ambitious lads of Brighton High, while the horticulturists, market gardeners and landscape gardeners trained by J. P. H. S. never have to look long or far for an opening.

The 1,512 hours of co-operative shopwork required each year after the first year," Mr. Moriarty of Charlestown High tells the other Minute Men of New England, "as well as that full fifth year in industry, are of tremendous value to the boy, because:

"First—They permit him to adjust himself gradually to the demands of industry under sympathetic guidance.

"Second—The wage received for co-operative shop work is enough to make him self-supporting.

"Third—It makes it possible for him to remain in school longer than would be the case otherwise.

"The motor-minded boy, after a brief experience in the outside shop, takes up his school work with an intense desire to get the full amount of science, mathematics, mechanical drawing, history and civics.

"Daily contact with older workers in the outside shops, many of whom were compelled to leave school at an early age, intensifies his desire to make the best possible use of all the advantages of a 'schooling'.

"The rotation of work with different concerns during the second, third, fourth and fifth years develops a boy's skill. He finds himself measured by the shop standards of different establishments.

Many widowed mothers have said their thanks to the Minute Men of these co-operative industrial high schools for placing their boys on co-operative work and thus making it possible for the young men to complete their education.

The ranks of skilled labor ARE being depleted. The work of the trades IS being done by unskilled men or semi-skilled machine specialists. Economic conditions HAVE changed and—slowly, perhaps, but surely—the SCHOOLS ARE CHANGING WITH THEM.

When our public school system came into operation it met the needs of the people. Industries were carried on in the home; children were taught the manual arts there; the boy was taught his trade by his father, the girl and her mother carried on in the home much of the work now performed in the factory.

"One of the great troubles in America," as was said long ago in the Mitchell report on industrial education, "is that too many of our wage-earners are misfits industrially.

"It frequently happens that in the matter of selecting a vocation or trade the individual is consulted too little. His trade is selected for him because it seems to provide lucrative employment or because it was the trade of his father, and not because there is anything in the work which appeals to HIM. He is summarily shot into a trade regardless of his adaptability to it; result, he goes through his life a misfit and mediocre workman, not because he lacked ability, but because his energies were misdirected."

While Boston's co-operative industrial high schools are declared by Bostonians to be conducted on saner and more progressive lines than any others in the country, they are not the only institutions of the kind in New England. There is, at Beverly, the Beverly-United Shoe Machinery School; while Fitchburg—the pioneer in these parts—inaugurated a co-operative school as early as 1908. Another undertaking much like these is the Independent Industrial School at Southbridge.

In the Boston schools, here considered at some length, and perhaps in some of the others, we at least appear to have a system whereby our boys have an opportunity "to acquire educated hands and brains, such as make them able to earn a living in a self-selected trade or vocation, and to acquire an intelligent understanding of the duties of good citizenship."

Educating New England's citizen-mechanics of the future.

Truly, a work of Minute Men, by Minute Men, for Minute Men!
